Received your letter yesterday. I Wish I could give you something to help in your search.

All I can tell you is what you must already know.

I was traveling from Naples, FL. to see my family in (are you ready for this?)

Lake City, PA.

My radiator blew and a tow company, which I do not know the name of, took me to that gas station which I hear is now defunked. While I waited for them to get me another one and install it, I took my dog for a walk in a field close by.

He got excited and dragged me toward the dumpster behind the station.

There I saw on the ground behind the dumpster, the remains of the poor John Doe. I couldn't believe what I saw and went to the men at the station and asked them to go look. One man did and immediately called police.

I don't believe it is necessary for me to describe the condition I found him in.

I waited around until the police talked to me and my car was fixed and then went on my way. I got about 40 miles away and began to shake. so I went to a motel and got a room since I was afraid to drive in that condition.

It was pretty early in the morning and a policeman told me that the victim had been there only a short while. I did see blood streaks on the dumpster like they had tried to push him in, but failed.

All these years I have wondered about him and who could have done such a thing. I figured it must have been Mafia since there is so much crime in Miami.

Again, I am sorry I cannot help you with new information and I applaud your efforts to do the right thing.

I would answer any questions, but I cannot think I can add anything to what you already know. Sincerely,
Rebecca Hunt.
